Role

This is an exciting opportunity for an innovative, entrepreneurial marketing student to assist this rapidly growing organisation that manufactures and distributes Rapid Self-Test Health Diagnostics kits to the UK and over 70 countries worldwide. Your aim will be to give their customers and potential new customers an increased awareness of their products and services across the world and through websites such as Amazon and their own e-commerce site. Mentored throughout, you will use social media to increase visibility of the company, including website content planning, writing for the company blog and other social media activities as required. This is a great opportunity to showcase your creative talent and take full ownership of the project, a great boost for both personal and professional development.

Tasks

- Social media management
- Content writing for blogs and newsletters
- Development of the digital presence including landing pages, SEO, and social media channels
- Customer support
- Developing innovative “out-of-the-box” digital campaigns to grow engagement with host products

Desired Skills

- Studying for a degree in marketing or similar with a focus on digital media
- Practical experience of social media management
- Practical experience using social media software such as; Facebook Messenger, Instagram and WhatsApp
- Good communication skills, verbal and written, in English
- Strong time management and organisational skills
- Content creation, Photoshop and video editing is a bonus

The Host Company

This award-winning host company, established in 2005, is a rapidly growing manufacturer and supplier of Rapid Self-Test Health Diagnostics kits including diabetes, pregnancy testing and digital thermometers. Supplying many of the UK's Supermarkets and pharmacies including, Tesco, Sainsburys and Boots the Chemists and having distributors in over 70 countries worldwide, they are becoming a leading global entity in this niche product field. They are now seeking dynamic individuals to take them to the next level.
