Role Description

This is a fantastic opportunity for a very sociable, adaptable and energetic, business native German-speaking student to gain international experience with a dynamic health-focused food brand. As a DACH Sales & Marketing Intern, you will support the international sales team in expanding the brand's footprint across Germany and Austria. Working closely with the UK-based marketing and sales teams, your work will span market research, social media management, lead generation, and support with in-market promotional events. You will travel frequently throughout the UK, Germany and Austria and engage directly with the market at events and tasting sessions, gaining valuable hands-on experience and exposure to the brand's international operations. Do you have an interest in international business, marketing or consumer goods? Do you like to keep fit and healthy and want to explore the UK? Then this internship is for you! It will provide real-world insights and practical skills in a fast-paced, cross-cultural environment.

Tasks

- Support social media and influencer activities for the DACH market
- Translate and adapt content for blogs and social posts, including recipes and campaigns
- Conduct competitor and market research e.g., pricing, wholesalers, gyms, retailers
- Maintain and update client databases and CRM records
- Assist with outreach to potential clients and partners
- Help organise and attend promotional events and tastings some travel required
- Support reporting on sales activity, client feedback, and market engagement

Desired Skills

- Studying a Business, Marketing, Communications, or Economics related degree
- Excellent communication skills
- Energetic, adaptable, and eager to learn
- Experience with social media management and PR
- Confident using Microsoft Office tools, especially Excel
- Familiarity with social media platforms and content creation
- Driving licence essential for UK commuting and travel in Germany and Austria
- Interest in a fitness lifestyle – including nutritional benefits

The Host Company

This rapidly growing UK-based producer of high-protein, low-fat dairy products is revolutionising the functional food market. With an increasing following in the health, fitness, and nutrition communities—especially across Germany and Austria—the brand is expanding internationally through digital marketing, retail partnerships, and innovation in product development. This forward-thinking and health-conscious company is looking for an energetic intern to support its international growth strategy and contribute to its mission of making healthy eating both accessible and enjoyable.
